

Put your best face (and body) forward.

Drop One Dress Size in Only One Hour!

The amazing new treatment that will get you the body you crave.

Now that summer is just around the corner, you're likely amping up your workouts and watching what you eat to prepare for bathing suit season.

Sometimes, however, hard work and a healthy diet alone aren't enough to help you lose stubborn belly fat or love handles. That's when it's time to turn to an amazing new technology used for nonsurgical body contouring, called Liposonix®. "I treat patients all day long who are in great shape and already at their ideal weight," explains Dr. Lisa Espinoza, owner and Medical Director of La Chelé Medical Aesthetics in New Hope, PA. "But they have that one area that just won't budge. The good news is, now you can do something about it!"

With Liposonix—which the FDA recently approved in the U.S. for use on the abdomen and flanks (aka, those pesky love handles), and which has been used internationally for the past decade, you can now permanently eliminate fat cells from your body. And the best part is, no surgery is required, eliminating the need for patients to subject themselves to anesthesia or a significant recovery period.

Liposonix utilizes a technology called High-Intensity Focused Ultrasound (HIFU) to destroy fat cells that reside 1-2 centimeters below the surface of the skin. Once these fat cells are destroyed, the body metabolizes them and then excretes them—an important distinction from other fat-fighting treatments like liposuction, which ends up shifting fat cells from one part of the body to another, thereby requiring the patient to undergo maintenance treatments.

Instead, Liposonix so effectively liquefies the fat cells it targets, that not only is there no burning or trauma visible on the skin after treatment, but patients also can expect to lose up to one dress size following a one-hour session. And because Liposonix is a minimally invasive procedure, you can expect to resume all your normal activities, including exercise—the very next day!

Of course, Liposonix is not intended as a replacement for healthy eating or good workout habits and exercise.

"I treat patients all day long who are in great shape and already at their ideal weight, — But they have that one area that just won't budge. The good news is, now you can do something about it!"

And because its targeting is so precise, it is effective only on patients who are in a healthy weight range (with a BMI of less than 30), with only about an inch or so of excess fat they would like to lose.

But for those who are suitable candidates, Liposonix is an exciting new way to look, and feel, your very best, especially when hitting the beach this summer! Patients may begin to see improvements within four weeks of their treatment, but the full effect will be evident between 8-12 weeks, meaning the time to book a complimentary consultation with Dr. Lisa Espinoza is NOW!

put your best face forward.
